Heather Knight is a cricketer who plays international cricket for the England women's cricket team. She is a right-handed batsman and occasional right arm medium pace bowler. Knight was called into the England squad on their tour of India in 2010 as a replacement for the injured Sarah Taylor and played in the 5th One Day International. She toured Sri Lanka with the England team in 2010, making her Twenty20 debut in the 2nd match of the series in Colombo in 2011.

Heather recently produced a match-winning innings in the T20 in South Africa, hitting an unbeaten 67 in Johannesburg and a brisk 25 to guide England to victory and is a fantastic ambassador for the sport.
